

Gamlingay and District Gardening Club

Grow your own vegetables

Presented by
Geoff Hodge

Geoff is a freelance garden writer, writing for various national gardening magazines and websites. Previously, a Web Editor for the Royal Horticultural Society, Gardening Editor of Garden News magazine and Technical Editor of Garden Answers magazine. He's written eight gardening books, with titles ranging from pruning and propagation to allotments and vegetable growing. He has a broadcast on the gardening programmes on both BBC Radio Cambridgeshire and BBC Essex. And he appears on Q&A panels at flower shows across the country and gives lots of talks and demonstrations at garden centres and for gardening clubs. As well as "live" talks.

He started growing veg when he was 14 and has since written two RHS books on the subject - the RHS Allotment Handbook and the RHS Allotment Journal. This practical demonstration will give you hints, tips and ideas on how to grow veg at home - whether you have a veg garden, a couple of raised beds or just a few containers on the patio and whether you're an experienced grower or just getting started. Come with any questions you want answered or problems that need solving. This is a practical demonstration.

Meeting Place: Eco Hub, Stocks Lane

Tuesday February 1st 2022,

7:30 pm

Visitors are always welcome

(Non members' entry charge of £4.00)